

Lynn Thomson is a senior labour and employment lawyer in Hicks Morley's Ottawa office. She advises a wide variety of public and private sector clients on all issues related to labour and employment matters in both unionized and non-unionized settings.

In addition to court appearances, Lynn also appears before arbitrators, Human Rights Tribunals and the Ontario Labour Relations Board, as required. She also works with the clients to ensure best practices, delivers training, and provides advice on a proactive basis before it becomes necessary to exercise her advocacy skills.

Lynn is currently on a leave of absence related to her eyesight. She remains in contact with members of the firm and is teaching at the University of Ottawa's law school and actively volunteering in Ottawa.

Practice Areas

Employment Law Human Rights Labour Relations Litigation

Industries

Colleges Financial Services Healthcare School Boards Universities

Awards & Recognition

The Best Lawyers in Canada (2008-2013)

Labour & Employment Law

Memberships & Affiliations

Friends of Hospice Ottawa – Member

Canadian Bar Association – Member

Ontario Bar Association – Member (Alternative Dispute Resolution, Education, and Labour & Employment Law Sections)

Education

University of Ottawa, B.A., LL.B., M.B.A.