Conducting a Benefits Plan Governance Health Check

By: Elizabeth M. Brown and Natasha D. Monkman

Pension plan governance has long had headline-grabbing status – and most plan sponsors regularly review their governance framework to identify and address any governance gaps. At the same time, employers who sponsor group benefits plans too rarely build regular reviews of their benefits plan into their larger governance responsibilities.

Preparing for the ORPP

By: Hicks Morley

The Ontario Retirement Pension Plan (ORPP) was first announced in the 2014 Ontario Budget as a major initiative to help address the Ontario government's concerns about retirement income adequacy, particularly for middle income earners. Since then, the Ontario government has made a series of announcements about the design and roll-out of the ORPP, culminating with the introduction of much anticipated new implementation legislation on April 14, 2016.
