Kenji Nuhn is a labour and employment lawyer in Hicks Morley's Waterloo office. He advises and represents employers on labour, employment and human rights issues. This includes wrongful dismissal litigation, grievance arbitrations, labour disputes, collective bargaining, human rights and accommodation, workplace safety and insurance matters, and employment standards compliance and litigation.

Kenji obtained his Juris Doctor from Osgoode Hall Law School, where he received awards for academic excellence in labour, employment and administrative law. During law school, Kenji was the president of Osgoode's Labour and Employment Law Society and he volunteered at a legal aid clinic.

Prior to law school, Kenji worked as a human resources professional for a large organization.

Outside of his practice, Kenji enjoys playing hockey, spending time with his dog and watching a good television series.

Practice Areas

Employment Law Human Rights Labour Relations Litigation Occupational Health Pay Equity Workplace Safety & Insurance

Industries

Arts & Sports Education Energy & Utilities Financial Services Government Ministries & Agencies (Federal and Provincial)

Healthcare Hospitality & Gaming Manufacturing Media & Communications Mining & Natural Resources Municipalities & Municipal Agencies Non-profit Organizations Professional & Technical Services Retail & Wholesale Trade Social Services Technology Transportation & Warehousing

Memberships & Affiliations

Ontario Bar Association – Member (Labour & Employment Law section)

Canadian Bar Association – Member

The Advocates' Society – Member

Toronto Lawyers Association – Member

Education

Osgoode Hall Law School, J.D.

Wilfrid Laurier University, B.B.A. (Honours with High Distinction)