

Dan Michaluk is a lawyer in Hicks Morley's Toronto office who regularly acts for management in a range of matters related to information security and data management, anti-spam (CASL), privacy and freedom of information. He also works extensively in the post-secondary education sector on employment, student and privacy matters.

Dan provides strategic, practical and legal advice on the implementation of new internal systems, the use of internal system information for business and security-related purposes, data incident response and internal investigations.

He also provides advice and representation to organizations in response to privacy complaints and claims, and to public institutions in respect of complex and sensitive freedom of information requests and appeals.

In 2012, Dan appeared at the Supreme Court of Canada in the landmark workplace privacy case R v Cole.
